

Biography

Chris MacPherson

Chris began his municipal career as a summer student in 1976 working for the City of Fredericton Recreation division as a labourer. After a few summers, he was asked to join the city full time and went to work organizing recreation programs for the community as a community recreation coordinator.

By the mid 1980's, he had been appointed to the position of Assistant Director of Community Services, a position he held for over a decade. In 1998, he was appointed the Director of Corporate Services (internal services) and in 2002 became the Assistant City Administrator for the City.

Chris completed his education at the University of New Brunswick with undergraduate degrees in Physical Education and Business Administration. He later completed a Master of Arts degree.

Chris has been involved with CAMA for many years, both as a board member and volunteer. He enjoys the networking opportunities facilitated by the annual conference and the many friendships he has developed with colleagues across the country.

He is married with three children and enjoys working out at the gym, hunting and flyfishing.
