

Biography Jean Savard

Completed a degree in education at Université Laval in 1975; internship at the high commission for youth, recreation and sport of the Government of Quebec; from 1976 to 1987, recreation director for the town of Saint-Émile; 1987, general manager of Saint-Émile; master's degree in public administration from ENAP in 1991; 2001, appointed manager of the borough of Haute-Saint-Charles after the municipal reorganization (Quebec City); since 2005, manager of the borough of Charlesbourg.

On a personal note, Jean was born and raised in Quebec City and has been married since 1975. He enjoys a variety of sports and activities including basketball, badminton, swimming, fishing and golf. Involved in several movements and associations including the Association des directeurs généraux des municipalités du Québec (president in 2003) and the Canadian Association of Municipal Administrators.