

About the Queen's School of Policy Studies

The School of Policy Studies at Queen's is committed to positively shaping public policy through education leaders of the future. Interdisciplinary and experiential learning opportunities provide our students with the perspective, connections and inspiration to discover solutions to complex social issues. We immerse our students in current public policy discourse through a network of faculty, alumni, researchers and community partners, providing active opportunities to impact public good

At the School of Policy Studies we are constantly adapting to the changing world of public policy. At a time when making and executing public policy engages all sectors of society in new and faster ways, we aspire to create learning experiences and results for our students.

Our curriculum for the Master of Public Administration program (MPA) integrates innovative learning with the depth, strength and proven performance of our faculty while delivering one of Canada's premier programs in public administration.

We offer a Professional Master of Public Administration (P.M.P.A.) to students from diverse academic backgrounds who are interested in solving complex policy challenges facing governments, institutions and organizations, in Canada and globally. Our program incorporates practical application of skills as a major component of the learning experience.

- Our program places policy in a broader social, economic, legal, political and institutional context.
- Our students' diversity is a valuable asset that strengthens their learning experience.
- Our faculty members are leaders in their respective fields, with strong connections to the public sector, the private sector and the community

What we do

Through high quality interactive teaching and integrated learning, we enhance leadership in public policy by providing students the inspiration, skills, competencies and connections to become better contributors to the public good.
